Dear Parishioners,

In Matthew 22:15-21, we witness a thought-provoking encounter between Jesus and the Pharisees, who sought to trap him with a question about paying taxes to Caesar. From a Catholic viewpoint, this passage offers valuable insights into the relationship between faith and worldly obligations, shedding light on the importance of genuine discernment and maintaining a balance between our earthly duties and our commitment to God.

The Pharisees, known for their strict adherence to the Law, approached Jesus with the intention of catching him in a dilemma. They posed a question about whether it was lawful to pay taxes to Caesar, knowing that whichever way Jesus answered, it could be used against him. However, Jesus responded with great wisdom, asking for a denarius coin and posing the question, "Whose image is this, and whose inscription?" (Matthew 22:20).

By acknowledging the image and inscription present on the coin, Jesus highlights the distinction between worldly obligations and spiritual devotion. He then utters the famous phrase, "Give to Caesar what belongs to Caesar, and to God what belongs to God. This statement emphasizes the need for believers to fulfill their civic responsibilities while remaining faithful to God.

In a Catholic perspective, this passage teaches us that we are called to be active participants in society, engaging with the world and fulfilling our civic duties. We are reminded that we should not neglect our responsibilities as citizens, recognizing that we have a duty to contribute to the well-being of society.

However, Jesus' response also reminds us that our ultimate allegiance lies with God. We must never allow our earthly obligations to overshadow our spiritual commitment. The passage invites us to reflect on how we prioritize our time, talents, and resources, ensuring that we dedicate ourselves to God's work while fulfilling our obligations in the world.

This passage challenges us to discern what truly belongs to Caesar and what belongs to God. It prompts us to examine the values and principles that guide our actions, seeking to align them with the teachings of Christ. By doing so, we can navigate the complexities of life with integrity, striving to integrate our faith into every aspect of our existence.

Our Gospel this weekend, presents us with an important lesson on balancing our worldly obligations and our spiritual devotion. As Catholics, we are called to be active and responsible citizens, while always recognizing our ultimate allegiance to God. By discerning what belongs to Caesar and what belongs to God, we can live out our faith authentically, making a positive impact on both society and our spiritual journey.

God Bless,
Fr Matt
