Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

Our journey in the desert is coming to an end. It is my hope and prayer for you all that your Lenten observance has been a means for each of you to draw closer to Christ. I am most grateful to the Lord who has used this penitential season to teach me how to have greater trust and confidence in His love and providence in my life. We should be ever mindful that, during our time in the desert, we must all learn to draw strength from Jesus who, at every Eucharistic liturgy, comes to renew in us with the covenant of His love. He is the True Bread from Heaven.

Holy week begins! It starts with Palm Sunday which commemorates both the Lord's triumphal entry into Jerusalem and The Passion He was to endure for the love of us all. In the Gospels, we find that, once Jesus had entered Jerusalem, He made His way to the Temple and drove from it the animals and the money changers. Pope Benedict XVI reflected on this event in a homily given on Palm Sunday in 2008:

...beginning with Adam's fall, human failure becomes the opportunity for us to be even more committed to the love of God. The time of the temple built of stone, the time of animal sacrifices, is now passed: the fact that the Lord now expels the merchants does not only prevent an abuse but points to God's new way of acting. The new Temple is formed: Jesus Christ Himself, in whom God's love descends upon human beings.

He, by his life, is the new and living Temple. He who passed through the Cross and was raised is the living space of spirit and life in which the correct form of worship is made. Thus, the purification of the temple, as the culmination of Jesus' solemn entry into Jerusalem, is at the same time the sign of the impending ruin of the edifice and the promise of the new Temple; a promise of the kingdom of reconciliation and love which, in communion with Christ, is established beyond any boundary. (L'Osservatore Romano-Weekly Edition in English 19 March 2008, page 3)

It is my hope that many of you will come together to celebrate all the solemn liturgies that take place on Holy Thursday, Good Friday, Holy Saturday and Easter Sunday. These are the high holy days of our liturgical year and they are an occasion for us all to experience the great victory of love revealed in the death and resurrection of our Savior.

Grace be with you all,
 Rev. Thomas I. Ward
