REFLECTION

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

It was during the Last Supper that Jesus spoke the following words to His disciples: Peace I leave with you; my peace I give to you. Not as the world gives do I give it to you. Do not let your hearts be troubled or afraid. (John 14:27) Here the peace that Jesus is speaking of is not merely the lack of conflict, but rather a deeper peace that comes from God alone. Its meaning is derived from the Old Testament word for peace which is Shalom. This Hebrew word may be better defined as wholeness or completeness.

A few verses after Jesus makes this proclamation of peace, He teaches us that He is the true vine… unless you remain in me. … you can do nothing. (John 15:1,4,5) We can conclude that peace comes to us when we are in union with Christ and seek His help in any endeavor and in any struggle. In the Second Reading this weekend, we hear from St. Paul who gives a similar admonition:

Brothers and sisters: Have no anxiety at all, but in everything, by prayer and petition, with thanksgiving, make your requests known to God. Then the peace of God that surpasses all understanding will guard your hearts and minds in Christ Jesus.

It would be a wonderful thing to have no anxiety at all. A book that I have often recommended for help in living the spiritual life is Searching for and Maintaining Peace by Rev. Jacques Philippe. In it he writes:

"Consider the surface of a lake, above which the sun is shining. If the surface of the lake is peaceful and tranquil, the sun will be reflected in this lake; and the more peaceful the lake, the more perfectly will it be reflected. If, on the contrary, the surface of the lake is agitated, undulating, then the image of the sun can not be reflected in it. It is a little bit like this with regard to our soul in relationship to God. The more our soul is peaceful and tranquil, the more God is reflected in it, the more His image expresses itself in us, the more His grace acts through us."
(Jacques Philippe, Searching for and Maintaining Peace)

To have, what might be called this peace of mind or peace of soul, we should strive to have moments of recollection throughout the day. In these moments, we can do exactly what St. Paul exhorts us to when he tells us: in everything, by prayer and petition, with thanksgiving, make your requests known to God. In those moments when we are not at peace, we should be mindful of our weakness and our total dependance on God. We all face moments of temptation, sorrow, anger, disappointment and anxiety as we face many trials in this life. Fr. Philippe reminds us that "God would spare us, if He could, all these trials, but they are necessary in order that we should be convinced of our complete powerlessness to do good by ourselves." (Jacques Philippe, Searching for and Maintaining Peace)
It is through this recognition of our powerlessness and our decision to place all our trust in the Lord, that peace returns to us. Again, Jesus exhorts us Do not let your hearts be troubled or afraid.

Grace be with you all,
Rev. Thomas I. Ward
